Dear FDA Commissioner,

I am writing you as a concerned citizen. I feel that my right to make educated choices regarding the foods my family and I eat is being threatened. Specifically I am referring to genetically engineered foods. I feel it is vital that these foods are labeled. How else will the voice of the consumer truly be heard than through our purchasing choices? I also feel adamant that GE foods should not be assumed safe and that they should be subject to mandatory pre-market tests. These foods should not be available until long term studies reveal their effect on human health and the environment. As I look at my healthy growing children, I refuse to accept that we are to be the guinea pigs for incautious scientists.

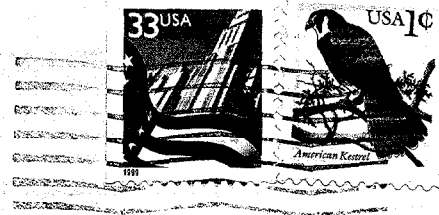

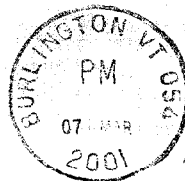

Thankyou for your time,

Ellen Spring
